LOUISVILLE JOURNAL THE Swiss REPUBLIC .- The New York Cor percial Advertiser calls altention to the affairs of Switzerland, which on several accounts are deserving of especial observation at this time. It says, that, with the exception of the little comnunity of Sau Mailno la Italy, It is the oldest public or confederation of free States in Chrisendom. The acquisition of Sivoy by France has brought the latter in dangerous proximity to those mountain fastnesses which form the key to nearly all Southern Europe; nor is the feeling be lween the two States of the most agreeable char ecter. Petty disputes have for some time been reaking out between them, and these are usual made to assume a magnitude out of all proortions to their real importance. But the Swisave had their internal dissensions, which have been settled only on fields of bloody combat. is to these, with the agencles which created ther and the consequences to which they gave rise ended in the independence of his country. But the heroes who won Morgarien did not possess nuch more than a thousand square miles of terriitory, forming the Forest Cantons, or Schwytz Fri and Unterwalden. These formed the nucleus of the present republic, occupying the almost in accessible regions north of the Mount St. Goth ard, in whose sides are found the sources of the Rhine, the Rhone, and the Ticino. The region was an ergle's nest, provided by nature for th hatching of a race of men strong of limb, bold i action, and full of outhusiasm-inst the qualiti ecessary to win success in such an age as that ictory brought them allles, and during the er State was repeatedly called trurgle with it vaders-Austrians, Burgundiaus, French, Sardir iana, Milanese, and even English; but at Seir pach, Hasle, Grandson, Morat, Nancy, &c., il sons viadicated its rights and made it one of the Nov. 25, 1900.

No. 2 teen years and equently the last of the old "Thir

Icen" Cantons was admitted. It was not, however, a career of glory and con quest without any drawlacks. In a controver with the house of Savoy the republic was drive out of possessions above the Lago Maggiore, o the Italian side of the Alps, and these have eve since remained with Piedmont. Then the mor relis of Europe made treaties for liberties to c these men, accustoffed to the license of the cam son corrupted the moral of a State, which the dishenored as much by their license as their fath ers had honored by their valor. Religious dis-putes formed another element of discord. The shabitants of the citles and the lower districts h pred the doctrine of the Reformation; these of e Forest Cantons, including the nucleus of th epublic, adhered to Rome. Disputes come lows; and in one of the engagements the bra Lwingle lost his life. The quarrel was renewed and in time ! re: ma theroughly "sectional" character-the Protestant North arrayed against he Roman Catholle South. So long and bitte was the strife that it is believed that Austria might have intervened and re-conquered the vented her from a quiring a position of so min importance, from which she might set against al the nelchboring States with sufety to herself. In 1648, at the great European Congress, the inde-France and Germany, with the smaller States

Douglas and Mason had a slight brush in the Senate the other day. Mason complained that the fugitive slave law had proved inoperative. Douglas reminded him that he was the author of the law of 1850, and that if the law was inefficient he should bring in amondments to render it otherwise, rether than propose to dissolve the Union.

Mr. Clay saul to us at the house of a relation of his in this city that in his opinion Mr. Mason purposely made the figitive slave law offensive to the North in one or more of its features, his object being to hring about the defent of the great compromise of 1850.

The oil region of Pennsylvania seems to be much more extensive than at first supposed, extending through Venango, Warren, Mercer, and many other western counties. At one point, known as Mecca, between 100 and 700 wells have been sunk, at an aggregate cost of $43,750, and two weeks ago were seventy-five engines in operation, pumping oil. Each well involves an outlay of from $1,600 to $1,200 for engine, parm, and vats, and produces from 3 to 12 barrels of oil add which sells at 25 cents a gallon. Two wells yield from 50 to 100 harrels per day. The oil discoveries have been already of immense value to Western Pennsylvania. Land which is Junnary last could have been bought at from $25 to $30 per acre, is now selling at $300 per acre.
